METEOROLOGICAL REPORT.—At the close of the last year, and the beginning of the present, the weather was natural. Frost and snow before Christmas; but since the 8th, the wind has become Easterly, with cloudy, hazy, cold weather. Rain occurred on the 2d, 3d, 9th, 10th, 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, and 22d. The Barometer began to fall on the 12th, and gradually got down until the 21st, when it showed some inclination to rise again. The Thermometer in town did not appear lower than 38°. The days appear to lengthen in the afternoon, but the mornings are dark and foggy.

MEDICAL.—Fever has somewhat declined this last month, in comparison with the two preceeding. The number of patients remaining on the books of the Cork-street Hospital, less than in November and December; and the number of applications for admission to the Hardwicke Fever Hospital, diminished: females more urgent than males. Some bad cases of fever occurred, attended with petechiæ.

Rheumatism, particularly of the chronic species, afflicted the poor, owing to the severity of the cold, and the want of necessary clothing.

Pulmonary complaints were also frequent, some requiring the lancet. Cases also of sore throat occurred, but no appearance of measles or eruptive diseases. From the humidity of the air, and the variation of the temperature, the number of deaths on the whole, in comparison, were few—principally those advanced in life, who were subject to chronic, catharrhal, and asthmatic complaints.

MENDICITY—The numbers on the books, increasing; the means of affording relief, diminishing. The last balance is barely sufficient for payment of the present debts.
